SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

Background

The Hague Conference on Private International Law is in the process of negotiating a new convention on jurisdiction and the recognition and enforcement of foreign judgments in civil and commercial matters. The draft convention would create jurisdictional rules governing international lawsuits and provide for recognition and enforcement of judgments by the courts of Member States. Member States would be required to recognize and enforce judgments covered by the Convention if the jurisdiction in the court rendering the judgment were founded on one of the bases of jurisdiction required by the Convention.

Discussions began in 1992, at the request of the United States. The impetus behind the request was to gain recognition and enforcement of U.S. judgments in other countries. While U.S. courts generally recognize and enforce judgments from other countries, U.S. judgments do not always receive the same treatment abroad.

The Hague Conference is planning a two-part Diplomatic Conference to finalize the draft convention. The first session would take place in June 2001, followed by a second session in late 2001 or early 2002.

The text of the proposed convention and other documents relating to the proposal are available via the Hague Conference's web site at http://www.hcch.net/e/workprog/jdgm.html.

Brief Summary of Draft Convention

The draft convention would create three categories of jurisdiction: (1) required bases for jurisdiction (generally Articles 3-16); (2) prohibited bases for jurisdiction (Article 18); and (3) everything else not covered by (1) or (2) (Article 17).

Articles 3-16 set out jurisdictional rules for specific types of actions that the courts in Contracting States must provide, and from which any resulting judgment may gain the benefits of the recognition and enforcement provisions of the Convention.

Article 12 creates exclusive jurisdiction for certain actions that "have as their object" the registration, validity, nullity, and possibly revocation or infringement of patents, trademarks, or other similar rights required to be deposited or registered, in the courts of the country in which the deposit or registration has been applied for or has occurred. Copyrights are excluded from the exclusive jurisdiction rule; however, actions concerning copyrights could fall under the other non-exclusive required jurisdictional provisions.

Specifically, Article 12 provides:

"4. In proceedings which have as their object the registration, validity, [or] nullity [, or revocation or infringement] of patents, trade marks, designs or other similar rights required to be deposited or registered, the courts of the Contracting State in which the deposit or registration has been applied for, has taken place or, under the terms of an international convention, is deemed to have taken place, have exclusive jurisdiction. This shall not apply to copyright or any neighboring rights, even though registration or deposit of such rights is possible.

[5. In relation to proceedings which have as their object the infringement of patents, the preceding paragraph does not exclude the jurisdiction of any other court under the Convention or under the national law of a Contracting State.]

[6. The previous paragraphs shall not apply when the matters referred to therein arise as incidental questions.]"

The brackets identify potential language alternatives to be considered and discussed in detail during the Diplomatic Conference.

Article 4 provides that parties may enter into agreements designating a choice of court; however, such agreements shall be without effect if they conflict with the provisions of Article 12. In addition, Article 5, which confers jurisdiction on a court when the defendant proceeds on the merits without contesting jurisdiction, is subject to Article 12 as well.

Article 10 defines jurisdictional rules for tort actions. This provision would cover copyright infringement proceedings. It also could apply to patent and trademark infringement proceedings if the bracketed language in Article 12(4) is not approved. Article 10 provides for jurisdiction either in the State in which the act or omission causing injury occurred, or the State in which the injury arose so long as the in]ury in that State was reasonably foreseeable. Article 10(4) would limit available damages, where jurisdiction is founded on the place of injury, to the damage suffered in the place the suit is filed unless that is also the plaintiff's habitual residence.

Article 18 defines grounds of jurisdiction that are prohibited in Contracting States. Article 18(l) would place a general limitation on the exercise of jurisdiction based on the absence of a "substantial connection between that State and the dispute." Article 18(2)(e) is of particular interest to U.S. litigants because it states that jurisdiction cannot be based solely on the fact that the defendant carries on commercial or other activities in that State, except where the dispute is directly related to those activities. This provision would prohibit the exercise of general "doing business" jurisdiction as currently recognized under U.S. law. Article 18(2) also would prohibit the exercise of "tag" jurisdiction in a court based on service upon the defendant in the State.

Everything that does not fall under either of these categories is included in the "gray area" as defined in Article 17. With some exceptions, countries can continue to act as they normally do under their national law; however, judgments resulting from actions covered by this provision will not get the benefits of recognition and enforcement under the Convention.

Chapter III provides rules for the recognition and enforcement of judgments based on a ground of jurisdiction provided for in Articles 3- 16.

Current U.S. Jurisdictional Law

U.S. courts must have both personal jurisdiction over the parties and subject matter jurisdiction over the case before a court can act on a dispute.

I. Personal Jurisdiction

Generally, in order to exercise personal jurisdiction over a nonresident defendant, district courts interpret the long-arm statute of the state in which they reside, as restricted by the limitations imposed by the due process clause of the U.S. Constitution.

Courts first apply the state long-arm statute, which defines what types of conduct would bring a nonresident defendant within theboundaries of the court's reach. Activities that can create jurisdiction under most long-arm statutes include transacting business, committing a tortious act within the forum, or committing a tortious act outside the forum that has an effect within the forum.

Once the court finds that the exercise of jurisdiction over the nonresident defendant is consistent with the relevant long-arm statute, the court then must determine whether the due process requirements are satisfied. The due process rule of the U.S. Constitution requires that a nonresident defendant have "minimum contacts with [the forum] such that the maintenance of the suit does not offend 'traditional notions of fair play and substantial justice.'" International Shoe Co. v. Washington, 326 U.S. 310, 316 (1945) (quoting Milliken v. Meyer, 311 U.S. 457, 463 (1940)). In evaluating whether minimum contacts have been established in a given case, the courts ask if a nonresident defendant, through his conduct and connection with the forum, "purposefully avails itself of the privilege of conducting activities within the forum state, thus invoking the benefits and protections of its laws." Burger King Corp. v. Rudzewicz, 471 U.S. 462, 475 (1985) (quoting Hanson v. Denckla, 357 U.S. 235, 253 (1958)).

A court must establish that it has either general or specific jurisdiction over a defendant before it can proceed with an action against the defendant. General jurisdiction is personal jurisdiction exercised over a defendant when the cause of action is unrelated to the defendant's contacts, but the defendant has sufficient contacts with the forum. Specific jurisdiction arises out of, or is related to, the defendant's contacts with the forum. See Helicopteros Nacionales de Colombia v. Hall, 466 U.S. 408, 414 (1984).

General jurisdiction has been found where the defendant was engaging in "continuous and systematic [though unrelated to the cause of action] business." Perkins v. Benguet Consolidated Mining Co., 342 U.S. 437, 438 (1952). To assert specific jurisdiction, a court is required to find that the defendant purposefully directed activities at residents in the forum, the claim arose out of those activities, and the assertion of personal jurisdiction is fair and reasonable. See Burger King, 471 U.S. at 471-76.

Courts are cautious in exercise of jurisdiction over foreign defendants. See Asahi Metal Industry Co. v. Superior Court, 480 U.S. 102, 114 (1987) (holding "unique burdens placed upon one who must defend oneself in a foreign legal system should have significant weight in assessing the reasonableness of stretching the long arm of personal jurisdiction over national borders."). Considered critical to due process analysis is whether the foreseeability exhibited by defendant's conduct and its connections with the forum State demonstrate that the defendant would reasonably anticipate being brought into the forum court. See World-Wide Volkswagen Corp. v. Woodson, 444 U.S. 286, 297- 298 (1980).

With respect to Internet-related cases, the law of personal jurisdiction is in flux. The traditional minimum contacts approach has been used to determine whether a court has jurisdiction over a non- resident defendant in Internet-related intellectual property disputes. In such cases, the courts have looked to a variety of factors, including but not limited to the level of interactivity of the Web site; whether the tortious act was committed in state or out-of-state with impact in the state; the number of hits on the Web site; or the foreseeability of use by forum residents. See, e.g., Cybersell, Inc. v. Cybersell, Inc., 130 F.3d 414 (9th Cir. 1997); Zippo Mfg. Co. v. Zippo Dot Com, 952 F. Supp. 1119 (W.D. Pa. 1997); Eskofot A/S v. E.I. Du Pont De Nemours & Co., 872 F. Supp. 81 (S.D.N.Y. 1995).

II. Subject Matter Jurisdiction

Federal district courts have jurisdiction over civil actions involving patents, trademarks and copyrights pursuant to 28 U.S.C. 1338(a), which provides: "The district courts shall have original jurisdiction of any civil action arising under any Act of Congress relating to patents, * * * copyrights and trademarks. Such jurisdiction shall be exclusive of the courts of the states in patent * * * and copyright cases."

A. Patents

As mentioned above, federal courts have exclusive jurisdiction over all suits "arising under any Act of Congress relating to patents." This includes all patent validity and infringement actions. Jurisdiction under this section extends "only to those cases in which a well-pleaded complaint establishes either that federal patent law creates the cause of action or that the plaintiff's right to relief necessarily depends on resolution of a substantial question of federal patent law." Christianson v. Colt Industries Operating Corp., 486 U.S. 800, 809 (1988).

B. Trademarks

Actions involving trademark infringement under the Lanham Act can be heard in either state or federal courts in the United States. However, most trademark actions arising out of the Lanham Act take place in federal court. Federal district courts have subject matter jurisdiction over all actions arising under the Lanham Act pursuant to Sec. 39 of that Act, 15 U.S.C. 1121, as well as 28 U.S.C. 1338(a).

Section 14 of the Lanham Act creates an administrative proceeding within the USPTO where a party can petition to cancel a registered trademark. 15 U.S.C. 1064. Federal courts have concurrent jurisdiction with the USPTO to hear proceedings to cancel a mark, so long as the challenge arises from an existing trademark-related proceeding, as a result of Sec. 37 of the Lanham Act. 15 U.S.C. 1119. Section 37 provides that a court may order the cancellation of a trademark registration "[i]n any action involving a registered trademark." This section, however, does not create an independent ground for exercising jurisdiction over an action—the court must have subject matter jurisdiction based on another ground before considering cancellation of a registered trademark. See 5 J. Thomas McCarthy, McCarthy on Trademarks and Unfair Competition, Sec. 30:110, pp. 30-186-88 (4th ed. 2000).

C. Copyrights

Federal courts have exclusive jurisdiction over actions based on the Copyright Act, including copyright infringement proceedings. 28 U.S.C. 1338(a).

Issues for Public Comment

The USPTO is interested in assessing support for or opposition to the effort to negotiate a convention on jurisdiction and enforcement of judgments and in obtaining comments on the proposed convention as it relates to intellectual property. Interested members of the public are invited to present written comments on any issues they believe to berelevant to protection of intellectual property or any aspect of the proposed convention as it relates to intellectual property. Comments also are welcome on the following specific issues:

1. What are your experiences in having judgments involving intellectual property from one jurisdiction recognized in a foreign court?
2. Have you had different experiences in having those judgments recognized in U.S. courts?
3. Are uniform rules for international enforcement of judgments desirable?
4. Do you support or oppose the United States becoming party to a jurisdiction/enforcement of judgments convention?
5. What would be the benefits or drawbacks of the United States becoming a party to the proposed Hague convention?
6. Would the elimination of tag or general "doing business" jurisdiction have any impact on intellectual property owners' ability to protect their rights either domestically or internationally?
7. What other changes to U.S. law would be needed to implement the proposed convention? Please identify any drawbacks and/or advantages to such changes.
8. What effect, if any, could this Convention have on other international intellectual property obligations, including, but not limited to, the Agreement on Trade-Related Aspects of Intellectual Property Rights (TRIPS), the Paris Convention, and the Berne Convention?
9. What effect, if any, could this Convention have on the enforcement of intellectual property with respect to the Internet?
10. Would application of Article 10 change existing jurisdictional principles as applied to intellectual property infringement actions? If yes, please describe any changes in detail and provide any relevant legal authority.
11. Would the limitation of worldwide damages in Article 10(4) have any significant impact in cases involving worldwide infringement of trademark or other intellectual property rights?
12. With respect to Article 12(4), under what circumstances would application of this subsection change existing jurisdictional principles, with and without the bracketed language included? Please describe any changes in detail and provide any relevant legal authority.

13. What effect, if any, would Article 12(4) have on trademark owners seeking to litigate rights related to registered versus common law marks?

14. Is exclusive jurisdiction needed for infringement and/or validity actions involving patents, trademarks, and/or copyrights?

15. What changes, if any, should be made to the proposed Convention? Please describe any changes in detail and provide any relevant legal authorities that support such suggestions.

16. Please identify any other potential concerns or advantages raised by the proposed convention.

In your response, please include the following: (1) clearly identify the matter being addressed; (2) provide examples, where appropriate, of the matter being addressed; (3) identify any relevant legal authorities applicable to the matter being addressed; and (4) provide suggestions regarding how the matter should be addressed by the United States.

Electronic Filing System Available to Public

Agency: United States Patent and Trademark Office

Summary: The United States Patent and Trademark Office (USPTO or Office) recently announced the availability of the Electronic Filing System (EFS) to the public. A description of the system, its operation, and the application of regulations to submissions under the EFS are presented.

For Further Information Contact: Jay Lucas at jay.lucas @uspto.gov. Questions on the operation of the EFS system should be directed to the SIRAI/EFS project primary contact, Ms. Diane Lewis at diane. lewis @uspto.gov. Correspondence may also be addressed to Jay Lucas or Diane Lewis, United States Patent and Trademark Office, Washington, D.C. 20231.

Description of the Electronic Filing System

The United States Patent and Trademark Office (USPTO or Office) has recently announced that its Electronic Filing System (EFS) is available to the general public for electronic filing. The software has completed a successful pilot program involving patent application submissions from law firms, companies, and independent inventors. Numerous changes to the software have been made in response to their feedback.

In October 2000, the USPTO distributed a new production version of EFS software. This software is used for three types of electronic submissions: (1) new utility patent applications, (2) computer readable form (CRF) of nucleotide and/or amino acid sequence listings, and (3) copies of applications for Patent Application Publication. Applicants using EFS will submit encrypted text and image files to the USPTO and receive an immediate Acknowledgement Receipt that summarizes their submission. If the submission is for a new application, it will enter the normal examination process. Sequence listings will be stored and processed. Resubmitted applications for 18-Month Publication will be directed to the responsible Office division for Patent Application Publication processing. Complete information on EFS is available on the Patents Electronic Business Center Web Page, at the USPTO Website: http:us to. oy/ebc.

The EFS distribution includes two types of software packages: (1) word processing templates to create an electronic specification, and (2) a separate, stand-alone validation and transmission program called ePAVE. The word processing templates, available in either Microsoft Word® or WordPerfect® format, allow the user to create an eXtensible Markup Language (XML) document with tags that identify the content of each element of the specification. For example, one XML tag will identify the title and a separate tag will identify the first claim. These tags will be used to control the display of the specification in a standard Internet browser form that can be processed by the USPTO.

The ePAVE program prompts the user to associate with a specification file standard bibliographic data, payment information, and publication information. The ePAVE program also allows the user to attach drawings, a scanned declaration, a nucleotide and/or amino acid sequence listing, and an assignment information sheet for new utility applications. ePAVE then validates the information, displays it to the applicant, prompts for an electronic signature, uses the applicant's digital signature to encrypt the whole package, and transmits the submission to the USPTO. Upon receipt, the Office sends to the applicant an "electronic post card" Acknowledgement Receipt, itemizing the files received by the USPTO.

As mentioned above, EFS will be used for three purposes: Utility Patent Applications, Biotechnology Sequence Listings, and Patent Application Publications.

Utility Patent Applications

Most non-provisional utility applications can be filed using EFS. Certain types of patent applications, however, must be filed in paper form since the necessary software templates for these submissions have not yet been developed or for other reasons. For example, provisional patent applications, design applications, secrecy order (national security) applications, international applications, and plant patent applications are not, as yet, acceptable for EFS. Detailed requirements for submissions are contained in the documentation provided on the Patents Electronic Business Center Web Page, at the USPTO Website: http://www.uspto.,gov/ebc. Until the USPTO moves to full electronic examination, utility applications filed using EFS will be printed on paper. This paper copy will become part of the official application file and be examined like any other application.

BiotechnoloXv Sequence Listings

Applicants may submit the CRF of a sequence listing required by 37 CFR § 1.821(e) for a previously submitted application (having an application number) using EFS instead of the conventional means indicated in 37 CFR § 1.824. Sequence listings can also be submitted with new patent applications using EFS as described in the previous paragraph.

Patent Application Publications

The EFS software is also used for resubmission of utility patent applications for publication (i.e., Domestic Publication of Patent Applications Published Abroad under P.L. 106-113). Consult the new regulations set forth in 3 7 CFR §§ 1. 211-1.221 for a full description of publication of applications.

Ordinarily, the application, as filed, is used for the Eighteen-Month Publication. However, if applicant desires the publication of

a) a redacted copy of an application under 37 CFR § 1.217;
b) the application as amended under 37 CFR § 1.215;
c) an application filed before, but pending on November 29, 2000 under 37 CFR § 1. 221 (voluntary publication); or
d) an application previously published under 37 CFR § 1.211 (a republication under 37 CFR § 1.221) then the application must be resubmitted in electronic form using EFS. If applicant requests early publication under 37 CFR § 1.219, then an electronic copy may be submitted using EFS.

Detailed explanations of these procedures are available on the Patents Electronic Business Center Web Page, at the USPTO Website: http://www.uspto.jzov/ebc.

Public Key Infrastructure Certificates

EFS, as well as the companion Patent Application Information Retrieval system (PAIR), relies on Public Key Infrastructure (PKI) technology to assure the confidentiality, authenticity, and integrity of communications over the Internet. Applicants who intend to use EFS must register to obtain a PKI certificate before using EFS. PKI registration involves filing a paper authorization and receiving the EFS software from the USPTO. The certification process generally takes a few days to complete. A customer number will also be required for transacting business with the USPTO. Procedures to receive PKI certificates and customer numbers are fully described on the Patents Electronic Business Center Web Page, at the USPTO Website: http://www.uspto.gov/ebc.

Confirmation Numbers

In order to assure the publication of the proper specification with EFS Patent Application Publication submissions, the USPTO is issuing confirmation numbers for each specification. Once an application is in condition for publication, a four-digit confirmation number is generated and transmitted to the applicant. This confirmation number is used in conjunction with the application number to identify a pending specification. In EFS, when an applicant is submitting a replacement specification for publication or republication, the applicant must enter both the application number and the confirmation number in order to submit the replacement specification. This procedure is necessary because many applications will have identical filing dates and similar application numbers; a typographical error could result in the specification being placed in the wrong application. Confirmation numbers for all applications pending in November 2000 will be generated and mailed to applicants if they desire to have voluntary publication of these applications.

Effect of Patent Regulations

Section 22 of title 35 of the United States Code expressly provides for electronic filing of documents. However, because the current regulations are directed almost exclusively to paper submissions, the regulations do not speak to electronic submissions. To the extent that any USPTO regulation is inconsistent with EFS, the regulation will be interpreted in a manner to support EFS and waived, when necessary, until formal regulations directed to electronic submissions are promulgated. See 37 CFR §§ 1.182, 1.183. When the Office has more experience with electronic submissions, formal regulations will be developed.

This waiver is consistent with the directives of current statutory guidance, including the Government Paperwork Elimination Act, Title XVII of Pub. L. 105-277, which in section 1707 states that government electronic records are not to be denied legal force and effect solely because they are in electronic form. The same section gives electronic signatures similar effect.

Weekend and Holiday Hours of Operation

The USPTO will be open for receiving applications in electronic form during scheduled hours every day of the week. Hours will be announced on the Patents Electronic Business Center Web Page, at the USPTO Website: http://www.uspto.gov/ebc.

Electronic filing will provide applicants with the opportunity to receive a filing date on any day of the week, including Saturday, Sunday, and Federal holidays. In addition, consistent with 35 USC § 21 (b), when the last day for taking any action or paying any fee in the USPTO falls on Saturday, Sunday, or a Federal holiday within the District of Columbia, the action may be taken or fee paid on the next succeeding secular or business day. Thus, under United States law, applicants will still be permitted to take action on the next business day when the last day for taking action falls on a weekend or Federal holiday, regardless of the mode or form of filing.

Because the conditions for priority rights are governed by national law, applicants are cautioned to consider possible adverse consequences regarding the determination of priority periods under Article 4(C)(3) of the Paris Convention when filing international applications in the United States. Specifically, the ability to file applications electronically on weekends may result in loss of priority rights in foreign jurisdictions designated in international applications filed with the USPTO, if applicants elect to take advantage of sections 21(b) and 119(e)(3) of title 35. In such circumstances, other Patent Offices may deny the priority claim on the basis that the international application was not timely filed according to their national law. For this reason, applicants may prefer not to take advantage of sections 21(b) and 119(e)(3) of title 35 when filing international applications with the USPTO.

Reference Collections of U.S. Patents and Trademarks Available for Public Use in Patent and Trademark Depository Libraries

The following libraries, designated as Patent and Trademark Depository Libraries (PTDLs), receive patent and trademark information from the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office. Many PTDLs have on file patents issued since 1790, trademarks published since 1872, and select collections of foreign patents. All PTDLs receive both the patent and trademark sections of the Official Gazette of the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office and numerical sets of patents in a variety of formats. Patent and trademark search systems in the Cassis CD-ROM series are available at all PTDLs to increase access to that information. It is through the CD-ROM systems and other depository materials that preliminary patent and trademark searches may be conducted through the numerically arranged collections.

Each PTDL offers reference publications which outline and provide access to the patent and trademark classification systems, as well as other documents and publications which supplement the basic search tools. PTDLs provide technical staff assistance in using all materials.

All information is available for use by the public free of charge. However, there may be charges associated with the use of on-line systems, photocopying and related services.

Since there are variations in the scope of patent and trademark collections among the PTDLs, and their hours of service to the public vary, anyone contemplating use of these collections at a particular library is urged to contact that library in advance about its collections, services, and hours in order to avert possible inconvenience.

Partnership PTDLs provide enhanced and expanded services for which fees are charged. They offer on-line patent text and image searching, on-line trademark searching, and videoconferencing for examiner interviews and workshops. They accept disclosure documents on site, order file wrappers, assignment documents and certified copies for their customers, and host a variety of seminars aimed at specific audiences, including practitioners, paralegals, and independent inventors. Currently, partnerships are located at the Great Lakes Patent and Trademark Center (GLPTC) at the Detroit Public Library in Detroit, Michigan, the Sunnyvale Center for Innovation, Invention and Ideas (SCI^3) at the Sunnyvale Public Library in Sunnyvale, California and at the South Central Intellectual Property Partnership at Rice (SCIPPR) at the Fondren Library of Rice University in Houston, Texas.

SECTION 1.—INTERNATIONAL CLASSIFICATION

The short titles associated below with the international class numbers are terms designed merely for quick identification and are not an official part of the international classification. The full names of international classes are given in section 6.1 of the trademark rules of practice.

The designation "U.S. Cl." appearing in this section refers to the U.S. class in effect prior to Sep. 1, 1973 rather than the international class which applies to applications filed on or after that date. For adoption of international classification see notice in the OFFICIAL GAZETTE of Jun. 26, 1973 (911 O.G. TM 210).

The short titles associated below with the international class numbers are terms designed merely for quick identification and are not an official part of the international classification. The full names of international classes are given in section 6.1 of the trademark rules of practice.

The designation "U.S. Cl." appearing in this section refers to the U.S. class in effect prior to Sep. 1, 1973 rather than the international class which applies to applications filed on or after that date. For adoption of international classification see notice in the OFFICIAL GAZETTE of Jun. 26, 1973 (911 O.G. TM 210).
